CERTIFICATION OF CONTRACTORS INSTALLING FIRE PROTECTION PRODUCTS AND SYSTEMS

Introduction

FIRAS is voluntary, third-party certification for installation contractors (installers of fire protection systems) operated by Warrington Certification, accredited by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) to BS EN 45011, for a number of installer categories, which include:

- Installation contractors of passive fire protection products and systems;
- Installation contractors of commercial and industrial sprinkler systems;
- Installation contractors of residential and domestic sprinkler systems.

The passive fire protection category is further subdivided by trade discipline, namely:

- board cladding to structural steelwork;
- reactive coatings (intumescent paint) to structural steelwork;
- spray coatings to structural steelwork;
- penetration and linear gap seals;
- cavity barriers;
- timber fire doors;
- steel fire doors;
- fire-rated rolling shutter doors;
- fire-rated composite doors;
- fire-rated glass and glazing systems;
- fire-rated ductwork;
- fire-rated separating elements (partitions and ceilings);
- sprinkler systems for residential and domestic premises;
- sprinkler systems for commercial and industrial premises.

In general terms, FIRAS certification assesses the technical capability of the installation contractor, the competence of the contractor's personnel and regularly inspects on-going contracts for compliance.

Liaison between FIRAS and relevant industry groups is maintained through Sector Liaison Panels. The purpose of these Panels is to:

- Develop and update the schemes
- Coordinate the views of industry
- Promote the schemes

This Directory lists all installation contractors who install fire protection products and systems and have met the requirements of FIRAS.

Further details are given below.

1. Installation contractors of passive fire protection products and systems

This section of Part 2 provides a summary of FIRAS certification as it relates to installation contractors of passive fire protection products and systems (1.1) and an alphabetical listing of companies certificated under FIRAS to perform such work, with full contact details (1.2).

1.1 FIRAS certification of installation contractors of passive fire protection products and systems

The main features of certification are:

Structure

- There is one certification category for all installation contractors;
- Assessment is carried out in accordance with the criteria listed below.

Pre-certification inspection

- Technical assessment of the installation contractor including inspection of ongoing contracts;
- Assessment of office based routines/procedures/systems;
- Assessment of personnel competence by 'one to one' witnessing of product/system installation and both on-site and office verbal examinations.

Surveillance criteria after certification

- Site inspections of ongoing contracts at a level determined by FIRAS;
- Annual office inspections;
- Notification of all contracts in hand using the FIRAS on-line database;
- Issue of Certificates of Conformity for all contracts using the FIRAS on-line database.

Technical criteria

- All installations shall be in accordance with proven, industry-accepted specifications, manufacturers' recommendations and test evidence;
- The use of third-party certificated products is preferred;
- Contractors shall not 'mix and match' materials of different manufacture to resolve particular fire protection requirements, unless supported by third-party certification, test evidence or an independent fire performance assessment provided in accordance with the Passive Fire Protection Federation Guide to undertaking assessments in lieu of fire tests;
- Any 'special detail' developed to resolve a specific fire protection requirement on a project must be similarly supported;
- Where the passive fire protection system requires the use of specified fixings/ancillary components, the contractor shall ensure that those used comply with the proven specification.
